| 9:00am | Keynote Opening Address: Diversity and Inclusivity in the Australia Public Sector: examining existing workplace policies to determine where to focus next
- Developing an effective method of measuring how successful your existing Diversity and Inclusion (D&I) strategies are and why D&I is essential to your agency;
- Understanding the critical economic factors supporting diversity and inclusivity as a departmental focus; and
- Examining international best practice to design new processes and policies to promote diversity in the Australian Public Sector.
Rajiv Ramanathan, Manager Inclusion and Social Procurement – Industry Capability and Inclusion, Level Crossing Removal Authority |
| 9:30am | Strengthening management accountability by building leadership capabilities
- What leaders need to know when managing diverse teams: it’s not just gender diversity that needs to be part of the discussion;
- Developing leaders who can avoid the risk of ‘group-think,’ and other limiting thought behaviours; and
- Educating leaders on how to create high-performance business units by leveraging their team’s diverse perspectives and backgrounds.
Fiona Cadd, Director – Experience, Strategy and Governance, ATO |
| 10:00am| Delivering more efficient execution of workplace diversity and inclusivity programs to increase productivity
- Determining what makes an effective D&I strategy and the positive impacts getting it right has on your team;
- Defining the correct Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) to measure to deliver clear and concise reporting of department performance and Return on Investment (ROI); and
- Highlighting the importance of getting D&I working by analysing existing programmes for opportunities for improvement.
Matthew Haanappeal OAM, Access & Inclusion Coordinator, City of Monash |
| 10:30am| Morning Tea and Networking                                               |
| 11:00am| Developing and building a cultural capability
- Understanding the skills, knowledge, and practices needed for staff to undertake their role in a culturally informed and supportive manner;
- Developing appropriate mechanisms to regularly promote and facilitate discussions to improve cultural capability within your department; and
- Highlighting how the Australian Public Sector Commission’s Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Cultural Capability Framework can be used as a jumping off point when developing your strategies to support diverse and inclusive cultural capability in your agencies.
Kerrie Loveless, Coordinator Diversity and Inclusion – People and Culture, City of Yarra |
| 11:30am| Panel Discussion: How to recruit & retain without discrimination
One of the most significant risks to a D&I workplace is what is known as unconscious bias or hiring, and promoting, in our image. Extensive research, from local and international sources, has long proven the benefits of D&I in the workplace both economically and in the areas of efficiency and problem-solving. This panel discussion examines how to;
- Develop recruitment strategies to generate the most diverse pool of suitable candidates;
- Link your talent management and succession planning to your D&I strategy;
- Use D&I to increase your public recognition and enhance your agencies reputation;
- Establish measurable D&I KPIs, analytics and reporting for your current, and future, recruitment needs.
Panellists:
Matthew Haanappeal OAM, Access & Inclusion Coordinator, City of Monash
Meegan Marshall, Global HR Leader, Director – HR Business Partners, RMIT University
Anna Van Gorder, Head of Engagement & Diversity, Australia Post
Ashley Samson, Diversity and Inclusion Consultant – Culture, Inclusion and Innovation, Australia Post
Lesley Jackson-Lopa, Aboriginal Employment Advisor – People and Culture, City of Melbourne |
| 12:15pm| Closing remarks from the Chair                                           |
| 12:25pm| Lunch and Networking                                                    |
As politicians in Australia continue to focus on Quotas and whether they are useful or not, the Australian Public Sector, at all levels of government, has gotten on with the job of ensuring gender equality and female leadership are given the importance they are due.

A recently released report, Roadmap to 50x50 Power and Parity in Women Leadership, published by the Wilson Centre in New York showed quotas are still needed as they ‘appear to signal a genuine commitment to improving representation,’ and that around the world, including Australia, the public sector is ‘flourishing with women in leadership,’ highlighting the need to ‘leverage this success to break down glass walls to other sectors.

After a sell-out national roadshow in 2018, Public Sector Network is pleased to be able to continue this vital discussion in 2019.

The Public Sector Network Women in Leadership Roadshow 2019 builds on the importance of developing clear policies and strategies to ensure true equality.

The roadshow aims to increase female representation at the most senior levels of the Australian Public Sector while laying a firm foundation for future leaders to follow.

WHO WILL ATTEND?

- C-Suite Executives
- Mid-level and Frontline Managers
- Directors and Managers of Human Capital
- Workplace Diversity and Inclusivity Managers
- Organisational development & workforce
- People & Culture
- Recruitment & Retention
- Talent managers

Learn to communicate with authenticity and impact.

Gain exclusive insights into how female leaders navigated their way to the top.

Examine the difference between leadership and power to ensure true equality.

Develop knowledge of the most persistent barriers to gender equality in leadership and best practice strategies to overcome them.

Increase awareness of ‘bias disruptors,’ and how they can improve recruitment initiatives.
Creating power parity: gender equality only works if power is equally distributed
- Measuring the power held by female leaders across the sectors of the Australian Public Sector;
- Examining the capacity to influence decision-making by highlighting the formal power, public perception and governance of the leadership position; and
- Smashing through the glass wall: ensuring female representation across a multitude of sectors not just the traditionally feminised sectors of the public sector.

Fiona Prowse, Director - National Disability Insurance Scheme Branch, Department of Premier and Cabinet

Panel Discussion: Building on past successes to further progress female leadership in the Australian Public Sector
- Identifying systemic and structural barriers to increased female leadership and the reforms and drivers needed to overcome them;
- Improving the understanding of department heads and front-line managers on female leadership and embedding workplace reforms to create a level playing field for new and existing recruits;
- Examining how unconscious bias can manifest in the workplace and how the use of bias disruptors can be successfully implemented to improve the department’s recruitment processes; and
- The power of part-time: increasing the capacity, and usage, of flexible work arrangements for both male and female employees and the role this plays in helping to break down the glass ceiling.

Panellists:
Entsar Hamid, Program Director – Service Transformation, City of Port Phillip
Taryn Lee, Director – Aboriginal Affairs Policy, Department of Premier and Cabinet
Judy O’Connell, Victorian Small Business Commissioner, Victorian Small Business Commission
John Bradley, Secretary, Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning

ABOUT US

About us
Public Sector Network is a young, diverse company that exists to help government break down silos, collaborate, and work together for better outcomes for citizens. We believe that public sector is forced to be one of the most innovative and resourceful industries in the world. Rather than constantly solving the same problem, government can improve citizen services whilst saving time - and money - by sharing and learning from other agencies, departments and councils.
